

Villard-de-Lans / Arzelier pass (stage 2) 4 Montagnes

Le franchissement du col Vert (y_buthion)

From the northern Vercors and the Quatre-Montagnes massif to the majestic foothills of the Trièves Vercors!

This stretch of the Grand Tour du Vercors for hikers sticks to the Eastern cliff trail along a narrow but well-marked path across scree and piles of fallen rocks, clinging beneath the imposing cliffs of the eastern barrier of the Vercors (including the Playnet rocks). The view along this cliff path is never less than splendid, although some sections can be difficult since the trail is particularly exposed to the vagaries of the weather. At the crossroads known as Tours du Playnet, descend towards Saint-Andéol to reach the village.

Advices

Be careful in winter: the route is impassable; in spring it is very tricky due to snow slides.

From the directional sign Pré Achard, you can—and must in winter—take an easier route through the villages so you can continue your journey towards Gresse-en-Vercors.

Use the installed passages to cross fences, close gates and barriers. Stay on the marked trails and respect private property. The trails can be slippery in rainy conditions! Do not cross hay meadows or cultivated fields.

Ensure that the fauna is not scared by your presence.

Respect sheep farms, refuges and cabin shelters.

Collect your waste, think nature.

You are in summer pastures, and may meet herd protection and guard dogs (patous). Always ensure that you go a long way round the animals, calmly so that the dog can identify you, do not pat or threaten them.

Athlete training (A)

The Fauge valley is regularly used for training by Vercors athletes. "We often have long training sessions during the long, hot summer days, when biathletes do most of their annual training volume. The aim is not to look for performance but to get your body working for a long time at low intensity to develop your capillary network and multiply your mitochondria, etc... To combine these training days with shooting, I sometimes ask a coach to take my equipment to the shooting range in Corrençon, and meet him there after a training run". Marie Dorin-Habert

Shelter of the Fauge (B)

The Fauge Shelter is a large, unguarded hut. With a fireplace, it can accommodate 20 people. It is named after the valley of the Fauge.

Col Vert (C)

Between the Roc Cornafion (2049 m) to the north and the Gerbier ridges (2019 m) in the south, the Col Vert is a breach at 1766 m of altitude allowing to join the Trièves. Formerly, this passage was taken by the Trièvois who would buy in the spring and autumn their cows of the city race at the fairs of Quatre Montagnes, while Du Trièves, Claix and Varces rose from the brandy and wine for the inhabitants of the Vercors. The ruin resting on the rock of the Vert Pass testifies to a place of arrest for these exchanges.

Arêtes du Gerbier (D)

The Arêtes du Gerbier culminate at 2109 m, and form impressive 400 m high cliffs. It is a popular place for mountaineering. It is here that the famous mountaineer Lionel Terray made a fatal fall with his friend Marc Martinetti, on September 19, 1965. Attribution : m rocheblave
